

Developing the Self
Developing the World

HUMAN HEALTH AND THE NATURAL WORLD

As health practitioners working with anthroposophic medicine and therapies, Louise and Lyn will speak to and offer experiences towards the archetypes of health that underpin anthroposophic medicine.

Parents, carers and educators with an interest in strengthening the immune system and working with the rhythms of nature could benefit from this workshop.

9am-12:30pm Saturday September 17th

Mount Barker Waldorf School

This workshop is funded by a Parent Initiatives in Education Grant.

Mount Barker Waldorf School invites all Waldorf communities in South Australia.

Bookings are essential

CONTACT THE OFFICE TO BOOK NOW ➔

To ask a question email: info@developingtheself.org

Louise Stewart has been a complementary health practitioner for 29 years and working with anthroposophic remedies and therapies for 18 years. She has been visiting Mount Barker Waldorf School for private consultations and contributing to child observations since 2016. Louise was a founding member and contributor to Milkwood Steiner School in 2004 and until 2016 held roles including Head of School, board secretary. She is now a working director for EduCareDo and Developing the Self Developing the World.

Lyn Clifton is a community health social worker who combines her anthroposophic wholistic healthcare training to re-enliven care practices in daily life at home and school. Lyn studied the Foundations of Anthroposophic Nursing with Taruna College New Zealand's Developing the Self Developing the World is a social initiative based on the work of Rudolf Steiner that offers spirit-led health and education. courses.

www.developingtheself.org